

Sharing God's Love in Practical Ways

"I learned so many practical skills during this training to help my people in Liberia. SIFAT is a reservoir. I was thirsty in a desert and here my thirst has been quenched. I praise God for this opportunity!"
Emmanuel Badejos, Pastor, Buchanan, Liberia

"SIFAT has been used by God to allow our youth to broaden their vision and knowledge of world missions. It has also given our youth an opportunity to serve the world without leaving our own country."
Alan Griffin, Covenant Life Ministries, Youth and Mission Coordinator, Alexandria, AL

"On a recent trip to Quesimpuco (Bolivia), I had the pleasure of seeing the SIFAT mission program in action. They have brought a 'holistic approach' to this area in improving the quality of life of poverty stricken people high in the Andes mountains. SIFAT has provided medical care, technology (new crops and clean water systems) and most importantly, Christianity, to a proud yet appreciative society. It was truly one of the great experiences of my life."
Dr. Ben Camp, Tanner Medical Center, Carrollton, GA

MISSION TEAMS

SHORT TERM TEAMS FOR LONG TERM SUCCESS

SIFAT mission teams work overseas in partnership with graduates in their community development and ministries. By working with international church and community leaders to support grass-roots projects, short-term teams are involved in long-term development. Prior to travel, team members participate in cross-cultural training to learn skills for building bridges with people from other cultures.

In addition to being a witness for Christ and working on much-needed specific construction or medical projects, team members discover that there is much they can learn from their Third World brothers and sisters that will enrich their own lives.

During week-long summer camps and weekend retreats throughout the year, youth groups grow in their Christian faith, worship, learn team-building skills, appropriate technologies, and experience life in the simulated Third World Village—while seeking to understand better the call of Christ on our lives.
